ROCKET #1352, ARE YOU THERE? COME IN, ROCKET #1352!

WHAT'S HAPPENED?

GIR-- ROCKET #1352 DOES NOT ANSWER!

THE TRIUMPH OF EIBREH REKCENPOP!

"Listen, fellas, you've just gnt to help Herbie out", said Mr. Popnecker. "Okay, so he's not a great athlete. He's not a great anything. He's little and he's fat, but if you'd only let him play football with you, it might make a man of him. Tell you what—put him in a game and I'll buy you all sodas for a week!"

So they let Herbie play. Lugged him in forcibly, you might say, because he wasn't very enthusiastic about it. And once in, he didn't seem to catch on to anything. "You meao like this?" he asked as they tried to teach him how to tackle—and promptly went on his face. "Like this?" he queried as they tried to instruct him in forward passing—and the ball wobbled weakly through the air for about two lousy feet. It wasn't aoy wonder that they decided that they'd bad it. They wouldn't mess around with that fat square if it meao sodas for a year, and they reported their decision to Mr. Popnecker—in politer language, of course.

"You don't have to try to go easy on me," mourned Herbie's dad. "I know what you're thinking and you're right. My son's a Little Fat Nothing!" It was a hard pill for him to swallow because he had hoped so much that Herbie might make good at football. The game was Mr. Popnecker's hobby, his chief interest. Particularly he was engrossed in professional football, and the New York Giants were his team, his darlings. Right now, he had his eyes fixed on the big game that was coming up the next week between the Giants and the Green Bay Packers. He couldn't wait to go to see it, to witness his darlings demolish the hated Packers. But as the days passed and the big game drew close, there were only bad tidings. One after the other, the Giants' star hacks fell prey to injuries, until there wasn't an able-bodied one left. The odds on the Green Bay Packers soared up, up. Now they were favored 45,000 to nothing, which should give you an idea of how things stood. Despite this grim picture, Dad planned to be on hand to cheer his idols on, but now the final blow fell. He came down with a bad cold and was confined to his bed. "I'm the unhappiest man in the world," he groaned. "I could stand nnt being able to see the game if only a miracle happened, and my Giants won—but where does a miracle come from these days?"

"Feel sorry for him", thought Herbie. "Better do something." So up into the air he walked, trudging through the skies until the big city lay unfolded beneath him. He stopped to eat a sandwich on top of the tower of the Empire State Building and then plodded high over the streets and avenues towards the training-grounds of the New York Giants. "Heard you need players", he said to Coach Allie Sherman. "Want a trynut."

There he stood, a fat little Buddha, Mr. Three By Three. Well, why nnt play along? The team's morale was low and they needed a good laugh. So "Go out on the field," invited Coach Sherman. "We could use a good backfield man. We'll give you the ball and all you've got to do is run through the team with it. For a terrnr like you, it should be a cinch!" He went along so as not to miss the fun. He grinned in anticipation as the ball was soapped back to Herbie, and then—Wham!

To this day, the Giants talk, in hushed accents, of what happened down on the training field. Frankly, they don't know exactly what did happen. All they knew was that when the dust had settled, there were the New York Giants, scattered from one end of the field to the other. Some lay on the ground dazedly, others hung off the grandstands. There were even a few draped over the goalposts and twa were picked up where they had fallen to earth in South Brooklyn. And there was Herbie, standing over the goal line and tossing the ball nonchalantly in the air!

Came the day of the big game with the Green Bay Packers and the odds on the Packers had reached 74,245 to minus 16. Oh, there'd been talk about a surprise new player that the Giants planned to unfold, but folks figured this to be just a forlorn hope. Green Bay won the toss and elected to receive. First down and Packers on the offense. They swung into position and their eyes widened incredulously. For there, facing them from behind the Giants' line, stood a perfect circle in football togs. A fat, squat little circle with glasses, staring unemotionally back at them. "It's a medicine ball!" gasped one of them. "No, it's a heavyweight pumpkin!" cried another. "More like a globe of the earth", said their quarterback, "but a cinch for us. Can you imagine that backing up a line?"

A Green Bay running play went right through the Giants' line. Crash! The runner had hit Herbie and it was like colliding with a brick wall—a fat brick wall! The ball squirted out of his hands and into Herbie's. "Our ball now," said Herbie unemotionally. "Let's go."

Coach Sherman walked up and down excitedly on the sidelines. A reporter stopped him. "Who is he?" the reporter demanded. "That fat little blob, the new man. What's his name?" "Sort of funny name," Sherman answered; "He calls himself Eibreh Rekcepop, The Demon From Yemen. He was a demon in practice, all right—now let's see how he does in a real game!"

They saw—and so did 60,000 spectators. But they weren't quite sure what they saw. On the first play when the ball was snapped to him, they could have sworn that he tucked it thoughtfully under his arm and walked right up into the air above the scrimmage line. He didn't even bother hurrying as he plodded along fifty feet up until he had crossed the goal line for a touchdown. Just try tackling somebody fifty feet in the air! Anyway, that's what the spectators thought they saw, but nobody would say it for fear of being thought crazy! So all they did was cheer wildly. "Eibreh Rekcepop! Yay!"

The next time Herbie received the ball, he threw a forward pass—a long, arching pass ninety feet down the field. At first, it seemed a pretty jerky thing to do, because there wasn't a receiver anywhere around. But that didn't faze Herbie the least little bit. The second the ball left his hand, he was off running—and when the ball came down, there he was waiting for it. Touchdown! "Hurrah for Eibreh Rekcepop!" screamed the stands. "The Demon From Yemen—hurrah!"

As you may well imagine, it was quite a game to broadcast. "It's a power play—I mean, a power play", screamed a top network announcer. "Eibreh Rekcepop has taken the ball again and is hitting the Green Bay line, where the big defenders are waiting for him. And—wow! Holy smoke! Zowie! You won't believe this, ladies and gentlemen—nothing like it has ever been seen! Holding the ball in one hand, the great Eibreh Rekcepop has picked up the whole Green Bay team on the palm of his other hand and is running for the goal line! And he's over again—for another touchdown!"

It was a game for the ages. Without Herbie, Green Bay would have been winner, but with him, it was the New York Giants, 4,256 to 0. Everyone on the field headed for Herbie, but then something happened that's still a mystery. One second the Fat Fury had been standing there—and the next second there was a flash, and he was gone, vanished, disappeared as if by magic! And even as Mr. Popnecker heard the radio announcer's amazed tones telling of this, he felt a presence in his room. He looked up...and there, seated opposite him was Herbie, slumped in a chair, his eyes dull and glazed, his hands folded on that all-too-plump stomach.

Dad uttered a strangled cry and Mom rushed into the room. "Just look at him!", panted Dad. "Even what went on at the big game doesn't excite him! Oh, how I envy the parents of Eibreh Rekcepop! Why can't our boy be like him? But no—all we've got is a Little Fat Nothing!"

IS IT AN OVERSIZED GOONY-BIRD... A WELL-UPHOLSTERED RHINOCEROS... A STYLISH STOUT JUNIOR WHALE? NO, NONE OF THESE THINGS. WHEN DARK DANGER LURKS, WHEN DEEP VILLAINY IS AFOOT, THEN IT'S TIME FOR THE TUBBY TERROR, THE FAT FURY HIMSELF! WATCH HIM IN ACTION, AS--

Until recently the process of hypnotic induction was largely based on trial and error methods which succeeded mainly with subjects who were highly susceptible to hypnosis in the first place. The truth is that these highly susceptible subjects make up a very small percentage of the population. That is why amateurs and beginning hypnotists have so often been disappointed in their attempts at trance induction. Now, however, recent scientific research has developed ENTIRELY NEW METHODS that are not only sure fire in their results but quick and easy to achieve! For the first time, these new methods are presented in HOW TO HYPNOTIZE in language that you can easily and successfully follow on the very first reading!

SHOWS YOU STEP BY STEP

This book — which has been acclaimed by doctors and psychologists — is guaranteed to give you all the know-how necessary to induce the trance state in others. It not only explains the latest discoveries in hypnotic induction, but it shows step by step, move by move, exactly how to bring on the trance; how to transform the trance into deeper and still deeper states; and how to terminate the trance quickly and effectively without any dangers whatsoever. You are even given alternative methods, so that you can actually choose the one that suits you best.
